Created 08/02/2010 - 8:52am

The new Terman Engineering Library [1] opened today at 9:00 a.m. (Monday, August 2). The Jen-Hsun Huang Engineering Center is also open. Some services in the library and the Huang Center will not be operational on opening day.

Not Yet Available
For the library: the School of Engineering computer cluster, SULAIR supported scanner and printer, and the cash-to card machine will be installed on Monday.

For the Huang Engineering Center: Ike's Sandwich Shop and the vending machines will be operational mid-August.

Available
For the library: two public kiosks and the photocopier is operational, and the RFID self-check equipment is installed and working. The external book drop has been delivered (we are waiting for signage and installation of the lock). All staff are on hand to answer questions and help patrons.

An "opening" event will be planned for later in the month.
