

The Continuing Studies Program

Dean and Associate Provost: Charles Junkerman

The Continuing Studies Program provides adults from Stanford and the surrounding communities the opportunity to take classes on a part-time basis for intellectual enrichment, both personal and professional. Courses and events are offered in all four academic quarters, with over 300 courses planned for the 2003-04 academic year.

The faculty are primarily drawn from the ranks of the University's distinguished professoriate. The program presents a wide variety of courses, with a central concentration in the liberal arts, including literature, history, art and architecture, and music.

Tuition discounts are available to University employees, Stanford students and faculty, Stanford Alumni Association members, teachers, and those over age 65.

For a course catalogue, contact the Continuing Studies Program, Building 590, Room 103, Stanford, CA 94305; phone (650) 725-2650; fax (650) 725-4248; email continuingstudies@stanford.edu; or visit the web site at <http://continuingstudies.stanford.edu>.

The Continuing Studies Program also administers the Master of Liberal Arts Program, and Summer Session.

Program Description—The Master of Liberal Arts (MLA) Program aims to provide a flexible, interdisciplinary program for returning adult students who seek a broad education in the liberal arts. The underlying premise of the MLA Program is that knowledge gained through an interdisciplinary course of study leads to intellectual independence and satisfaction not always found in discipline-based programs of study. The goals of the MLA Program are to develop advanced critical thinking, to foster intellectual range and flexibility, and to cultivate an individual's ability to find the connections among different areas of human thought: art, history, literature, music, philosophy, political science, science, and theology.

The program is designed with part-time students in mind: seminars meet in the evening, and students complete the degree in 4-5 years. All master's seminars are taught by members of the Stanford faculty. Class size is limited to 20 students.

Degree Requirements—Candidates for the MLA degree must complete a minimum of 50 units of course work. These units must include a three quarter foundation course (equal to 12 units total), one core introductory seminar for entering students, at least seven 4-unit MLA seminars, and a 4-unit master's thesis. The remaining 2 units of required courses may be fulfilled by additional MLA seminars, relevant Continuing Studies Program course offerings, or by a summer session at Oxford. Students must also fulfill distribution requirements by taking at least 2 units of credit in each of the following areas: humanities; social science or social policy; and science, engineering, or medicine.

Foundation Course—During the autumn, winter, and spring following admission to the program, there is a three quarter foundation course required of all students. The purpose of this course is to lay the groundwork for the interdisciplinary, intercultural studies the student will shortly undertake. The foundation course will introduce students to the broad framework of history, literature, philosophy, political science, and art.

Core Seminar—During the first quarter of the second year, new students take the core introductory seminar, The Plague: An Introduction to Interdisciplinary Graduate Study. This seminar aims to prepare students for interdisciplinary graduate work at Stanford. Students concentrate on writing a critical graduate paper, conducting library research, presenting the results of their research, and productively participating in a collaborative seminar.

MLA Seminars—Students are required to take at least seven MLA seminars of four units each. Each year, at least nine seminars are offered in the MLA program. Each MLA course requires a substantial seminar paper. Students are encouraged to use these papers as a way to investigate new fields of interest, as well as a way to develop different perspectives on issues in which they have an ongoing interest.

Master's Thesis—The MLA Program culminates in the master's thesis. Students approaching the end of the program write a thesis, approximately 75-100 pages in length, that evolves out of work they have pursued during their MLA studies. The thesis is undertaken with the prior approval of the MLA Program, and under the supervision of a Stanford faculty member. During the process of writing the thesis, students are members of a work-in-progress group, which meets regularly to provide peer critiques, motivation, and advice. Each student presents the penultimate draft of the thesis to a colloquium of MLA faculty and students, in preparation for revising and submitting the final draft to the adviser and to the MLA Program. # SUMMER SESSION

Associate Dean: Patricia Brandt

Director of Admission and Students Services: Teresa Nishikawa

Students attending Stanford Summer Session are enrolled in either a regular degree program, the Summer Visitor Program, Summer College for High School Students, or Discovery Institutes.

The Regular Degree Program is for students who are candidates for a Stanford degree and who are continuing their academic work in the Summer Quarter. Degree-seeking Stanford students should indicate on Axess (during Spring Quarter) their intention to register for the Summer Quarter. Separate application is not required.

The Summer Visitor Program is for students who are not presently candidates for a Stanford degree. It is open to students who are currently enrolled in or have graduated from another college or university. Qualified high school students who have completed at least their sophomore year may be admitted to the Summer College.

Students in Summer Session enjoy all the privileges of students in the regular degree program except that work completed cannot be applied toward a Stanford degree or credential until the student has been admitted to regular standing. Admission as a summer visitor does not imply later admission to matriculated status. However, should the visitor matriculate at a later date through normal admission procedures, the summer work may, in most cases, be applied toward the requirements for a Stanford degree or credential.
