

Richard Schupbach

Biographical Information

Birth: New Haven, CT
11/9/40

Education

B.A. Yale University 6/62, Russian Studies
M.A. UCLA 6/64, Slavic Languages and Literatures
Ph.D. UCLA 6/69, Slavic Linguistics

Employment

1970-71 Moorhead State University, Moorhead, MN
1971-present: Stanford University, Stanford CA

rank: Professor

Academic address

Department of Slavic Languages and Literatures
Building 40
Stanford University
Stanford, CA 94305/2006
tel. 650-725-0007
fax: 650-725-0011

Home address

Box 3037 Stanford University
Stanford, CA 94309
phone: 650-497-0108
fax: 650-725-0011

Bibliographic information

Books

Russian Desubstantival Derivation (A Paradigmatic View), Anma Libri, Saratoga, Cal., 1975.

Lexical Specialization in Russian, UCLA Slavic Studies, vol. VIII, Slavic Publishers, Columbus, Ohio, 1984.

Stanford Slavic Studies, vol's. 1-21, Berkeley Slavic Specialties, Berkeley, CA, editor, along with Lazar Fleishman and Gregory Freidin.

The Golden Calf, by Il'ja Il'f and Evgenij Petrov, an edited, annotated, and stressed version for Intermediate Russian, Berkeley Slavic Specialties, Berkeley, Cal., 1996.

Articles (over the last ten years):

“Grammatical Innovations in Technical Russian: The Decline of the ‘Instrumental of Means’”, Slavic and East European Journal, XXX/4, 1986.

“Syntactic Profiles of Style in Russian”, Lingua, LXXII (1987).

“On Technical Russian and the Teaching Thereof”, SEEJ, XXXII/3, 1988.

“East European Graduate Students in American Programs”, AGS, 1990.

“Intra-Linguistic Borrowing in Russian”, Journal of Slavic Linguistics, June, 1999.

“The Suffix -OST’ and the “diglossia” of Russian styles”, Festschrift for the 70-th Birthday of Dean S. Worth, Slavica, to appear 1999.

Invited Presentations (over the last ten years):

“Linguistic change in synchrony” before the Institute of Linguistics, Academy of Sciences of the USSR, Leningrad, May, 1988.

“East European Graduate Students in American Programs”, at the Annual Meeting of the Association of Graduate Studies, 1990.

“The History of the Word and the Affix” with Anatolij Polikarpov, read at The International Conference on Historical Linguistics, University of Manchester, August, 1995

Recent Awards

1988, International Research and Exchanges Board/Academy of Sciences of USSR for three months of study at the Institute of Linguistics, Academy of Sciences, Leningrad.

1994, Stanford University, Bing Grant for development of a computer-graded diagnostic test for Russian written skills.

1995, Stanford University, Bing Grant for development of a reading course in technical Russian on the WWW.

1995, International Research and Exchanges Board fellowship for study of the language of the “Old Believers” in Woodburn, OR (with Richard Morris).

Recent Service to the University

2000-2002, Resident Fellow

Work in Progress

Collaboration with Prof A.A. Polikarpov at Moscow State University