

Stanford Seminar on Science, Technology, and Society

Spring 2006 Schedule

April 7: Charles Perrow, Yale: "Reducing Our Vulnerabilities to Natural, Industrial, and Terrorist Disasters" Comment: Steve Barley

April 14: Henry Greely, Stanford: "Neuroscience and Lie Detection - Science, Law, and Ethics," Comment: Laura Donahue

April 21: Ronald Kline, Cornell University: "Where Are the Cyborgs in Cybernetics?" Comment: Fred Turner

April 28: Chandra Mukerji, UC San Diego: "The Gender Politics of Technological Expertise: The New Rome and New Romans in 17th-Century France" Comment: Paula Findlen

May 5: Diane Vaughan, Columbia University: "NASA Revisited: Theory, Analogy, and Public Sociology" Comment: Douglas Osheroff

May 12: Londa Schiebinger, Stanford: "Exotic Abortifacients: The Gender Politics of Plants in the Eighteenth-Century Atlantic World" Comment: Charis Thompson, UC Berkeley

May 19: Joseph Dumit, UC Davis: "Virtually Unlimited Health Imperatives: Risk Trafficking and Prescription Maximization" Comment: Robert Proctor

May 26: Simon Cole, UC Irvine: "How Much Justice Can Technology Afford? The Impact of Scientific and Technological Developments on Equal (Criminal) Justice" Comment: Erin Murphy, UC Berkeley

June 2: Jean-Pierre Dupuy, École Polytechnique, Paris: "Back from Chernobyl: Diary of an Outraged Man" Comment: Sonja Schmid

June 9: Hugh Gusterson, MIT: "Deconstructing Colin Powell" Comment: Lynn Eden

Where: Encina Hall East, Room 207, 616 Serra St., Stanford.
When: 12:00 - 1:30 pm, Fridays. For lunch, please RSVP to jwidman@stanford.edu by Wednesday before the seminar.

Sponsored by the Program in Science, Technology, and Society and the Center for the Interdisciplinary Study of Science and Technology. For questions about this poster, contact (650) 723-2565.