Methodology Conducted by National Opinion Research Center [NORC], August 18, 2004-January 4, 2005, and based on face to face interviews with a national adults sample of 2,812.

Variables:

Abstract: The 1972-2004 cumulative data file (with SPSS portable file) for the National Opinion Research Center's General Social Surveys is now available from the Roper Center for Public Opinion Research on CD-ROM. The most recent study was conducted under the direction of James A. Davis and Tom W. Smith at NORC/University of Chicago, and Peter V. Marsden, Harvard University during the spring of 2004. The study is part of the continuing surveys conducted for the National Data Program for the Social Sciences. The new survey has been added to the cumulative file, which now contains data spanning over 30 years. The newly released data file contains individual response coding for 46,510 respondents and over 4,600 variables. The 2004 GSS follows the biennial, double sample design that was first adopted in 1994. There are twelve topical, mini-modules and two International Social Survey Program (ISSP) modules. In addition to the continued support of the National Science Foundation, the 2004 GSS received funds from the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, CIRACLE, the Fetzer Institute, National Institute for Occupational Safety & Health, Metanexus Institute, the Institute for Research on Unlimited Love, the National Human Genome Research Institute, the Smith Richardson Foundation, the Bureau of the Census, Russell Sage Foundation, and Yale University.
