

The data file is an excel file and contains the degree distributions from each of the six data sets reported in the paper. The details on exactly how these were used are completely specified in the paper.

The simulation files are both mathematica files. These are completely annotated as to the names of the variables, and a description of the simulations appears in the paper.